

PROFESSIONAL ADVANCED COURSE ON MEDIATION

Mediation is a voluntary, collaborative, and confidential process of alternative dispute resolution, wherein a neutral mediator facilitates communication between parties to assist them in reaching a mutually acceptable solution to their disputes. Unlike adjudicative methods, mediation emphasizes the autonomy of the parties and focuses on preserving relationships. Mediation is increasingly being recognized as a cost-effective and efficient tool for resolving disputes in commercial, familial, and societal contexts.

The professional conduct of mediation requires mastery in active listening, conflict resolution, negotiation strategies, and an understanding of legal and non-legal aspects of disputes. The mediator's role is pivotal in ensuring a fair process and a productive outcome, which demands profound knowledge and practical expertise in the mediation process.
